

I think number portability is a great idea. It seems to give growth to competition. The idea that this in turn drives down prices is always a positive.